Tropical Storm Barry was expected to make landfall somewhere on the central Louisiana coast as a Category 1 hurricane either late Friday night or early Saturday morning, but Hancock County officials still warned of rain and storm surge.

"Right now," Hancock County Emergency Management Agency Director Brian Adam said, the National Weather service was "telling us we can expect 2-3 inches of rain today, 3-5 inches (Saturday) and another 1-3 inches on Sunday, and our storm surge will be 3-5 feet above normal. We've had a lot of flooded streets ... in the low-lying areas."

Early Friday morning, EMA staff reported "minor to heavy" flooding on 139 streets in, 52 of which were impassible.

Adam said residents in low-lying areas should keep a close watch on the storm.

Homeless face challenges from personal safety to hygiene

"Without the sleeping bag I'm just somebody up early in the morning, sitting under a tree. With the sleeping bag I'm nobody up early, sitting under a tree: a slight, but important difference in how I'll be perceived. ... I want to avoid people, because there's only one thing worse than being homeless, and that's people who are not, knowing that you are."

Do you remember the good times tent camping in the summer, perhaps at McLeod Park, Buccaneer Park or on a creek on private property? After a couple of days of heat, bugs, and dirt or sand you pack the truck looking forward to a shower, air conditioning and a full kitchen stocked with food.

Living the homeless life is like that, if you take away the truck and the surety of a shower, air conditioning, kitchen appliances and plentiful food. Throw in the absence of a toilet and you've got the discomfort and challenges of living full-time in the woods.

HOMELESS CAMPS

There has been enough news of homeless camps in the county through the years that the existence of them is common knowledge. It's well known a camp adjacent to Wal-Mart comes and goes, and some years back a camp next to the fire station on Highway 90 in Waveland was shut down. The biggest news coming out of a local camp was when one homeless man killed another homeless man in apparent self-defense.

What do these camps look like? How do they get established? How large are they?

For details about the inner workings of these camps, Todd Wimbish, the "Mayor of the Homeless," lends his insight.

"One person finds a place where they're not disturbed and within 6 or 7 months they've allowed one other person there and then one other and one other, so they just go to where they aren't disturbed and they just found

Barry won't dampen enthusiasm for Frida

"Frida Fest is still going on," fest co-founder Ann Madden said Friday. The fifth-annual festive is scheduled to coincide with the Old Town Merchants Association's Second Saturday Artwalk today in downtown Bay St. Louis.

Depending on the weather, Madden said, "Plan B is to move everything over to the 100 Men Hall," which is also one of the Second Saturday "Hot Spots."

Madden said organizers would make the call whether to move to the hall as early on possible on Saturday and blast the information on social media.

The Second Saturday

CASA Poker Run rescheduled

While Second Saturday and Frida Fest are still going on, CASA of Hancock County made the decision to postpone its annual poker run, which had been scheduled for today.

The CASA Poker Run

Chief is always looking to make the people around him better."

"I will miss the people," Dubuisson said last week, "not only the people you work with, but the people you deal with every day. That interaction, particularly in a place like Diamondhead, where people come from all over the country -- from all over the world, really -- that's something very special."

Dubuisson's family and colleagues hosted a retirement party for him, but he didn't want anyone to make a fuss.

"I just kind of tried to ease out," he said. "I have kind of a thought -- we have people that retire after 25 or 30 years in the fire service, or law enforcement, and they get all kinds of recognition, but there are (other) people there working who deserve recognition every day."

Dubuisson began his career as a volunteer at the Long Beach Fire Department, working there for 27 years before coming to the Diamondhead department to replace retiring Chief Dennis Westbrook.

Dubuisson said there were many memorable moments over the course of his career, but perhaps none more so than the aftermath of Hurricane Katrina.

"Katrina has to be near the top because of the vast damage everywhere and all the people affected, and all the help people needed," he said. "Everybody needed something. And all the emergency responders -- as a first-responder, you're expected to do your job, yet all these people had homes destroyed, things lost, yet they kept on working."

"But I'll also always remember the friendships we made with people from all over this country, from Eugene, Oregon, all up and down the east coast. People came from all over the country to help. We're still in contact with a lot of those folks, they're still good friends, so it's nice finding a silver lining like that."

Dubuisson said one of things he enjoyed most about the job was training the new guys.

"I think about when we have that young firefighter who comes on board with us and they really aren't sure yet, but when they finally realize they've been called to do this, and they grow and flourish, I think that's very enjoyable to watch."

While Dubuisson has a lot of memories from his service, he said, "I have no regrets in my career. I walked out with a happy smile on my face."

"It's been really humbling to be in a career that you just can't wait to get up and go to work the next day. To have that opportunity, both in Long Beach for so long and in Diamondhead, I feel very fortunate. I know it sounds corny, but it's the truth."

Dubuisson's said successor, Chief Mike Munger, is a 23-year veteran of the department, "and he's going to do a fantastic job."

A brief jaunt through the English countryside

A few weeks back, I recounted the first leg of a memorable trip from my youth I had taken with my family to see a bit of England and France. The time we spent in London was incredible, but our trip was just getting started. This next part of the journey really made for some great memories.

After finishing up in London, we boarded a train at Victoria Station and were soon on our way to Salisbury to see Stonehenge. This may have been one of the last years the public was allowed to go up close to the megalithic structure, as soon after the people were only allowed to view the menhirs from afar due to, sadly, vandalism and graffiti. The day also included a tour of Salisbury Cathedral, which has the tallest spire in the UK, one of the world's oldest working clocks, and an original copy of the Magna Carta on display. We soon departed on the train for our next night's stay in Bath.

Bath was extremely fascinating. The city is named for its Roman bath ruins built on top of natural hot springs. Tourists from all over the world come to the bathhouse to dip their fingers in the warm waters (the waters are no longer safe for bathing) and also sample the potable mineral water in the Grand Pump Room (I remember the water tasting extremely bitter). After a walking tour, we were ready for our next location, the city of York, as we made our way northwards toward the Lake District.

Like Bath, York dates back to Roman times. The city has a museum where in the basement is an attraction known as the "Smelly Tour," so-called because the "ride" takes you on a tour of a medieval version of the city complete with the sights, sounds, and, smells of the era. I believe the experience put us all off our dinner that evening. Other sights of the day included women playing lawn bowling on a bowling green; and a tour of the local cathedral, York Minster, where we saw an Anglican youth rally with the sound of, strangely, the music of steel drums. Our time in England was coming to an end and we had one last stop before we made our way back to London to board the TGV train for Paris, and that was Grasmere in the Lake District close to the Scottish border.

This had to have been one of my father's favorite parts of the trip. As an English major in college, he had

The Merchants of Hancock County: Part 1

The first merchants of Hancock County opened general merchandise stores in the several commercial centers in the nineteenth century.

John Toulme was an example of the first generation of such merchants, and August Keller was an example of the second generation of merchants in the second half of the 19th century.

A survey of the most notable wellknown merchants of the 19th century will be presented. Many local merchants, too numerous to count, operated more specialized businesses in the 20th century marketplace of Hancock County.

One such merchant, W. A. McDonald, serves as a metaphor/symbol for the consummate history of the merchants of Hancock County and America in that century. John Toulme was a French immigrant whose family were coffee planters from Santo Domingo.

Toulme came to Bay St. Louis and in 1812 established the first general mercantile store with $26,000 of capital. He married Emelie Wetherite Saucier, and they purchased a house on the corner of Union and Front Street (Beach Blvd.).

HANCOCK HISTORY
by James Keating MD

Toulme was very successful at business. He also invested in a sawmill and amassed a fortune over his lifetime. He bought large tracts of land in Bay St. Louis, New Orleans, and Mobile. As a result his success attracted other merchants to Bay St. Louis. Toulme set an example for future generations of merchants expressing the philosophy that "courtesy goes a long way" and "the customer is always right."

August Keller owned the popular "Blue Store" in the Bay located on Front and Washington Streets. He had been in the general merchandise business since 1874. Patrons came from as far as Waveland, Ulmanville, Pass Christian, and the interior towns of Hancock County to shop at the Blue Store.

He had an enormous business especially on Saturdays when country folk would come to town. He had seven employees and maintained three wagons to deliver goods to customers. Because there were no banks in Hancock County in the 19th century, it was customary for merchants like Keller to provide a safe place for his regular customers to store their money.

Keller kept a vault in the back of his store for this purpose. There were no banks in Hancock County in the 19th century. John Osoinach, who worked for Keller for several years, later owned his own store. He acquired the unofficial title of the county's first banker because he cashed and issued checks for his own customers.

Pearlington had been a port for general trade and cotton on the Pearl River before Captain John Poitevent organized the Poitevent and Favre Lumber Company after the Civil War. This lumber mill had a large commissary—two hundred feet long crammed with goods.

Other large stores in Pearlington in that time frame were the Cash Store, Orr Brothers, and CK Russ serving a population of 1,700 in 1900. The L&N Railroad and the local mail boat/steam boat were employed to transport merchandise.

Previous to the advent of rail service, all goods in and out of Pearlington were carried by schooners and later steamboats from ports such as New Orleans and Mobile.

In Logtown the Weston Lumber Mill had a large commissary store with annual sales of $350,000 in its heyday. Employees were expected to shop at the company store. The population of Logtown grew from 350 to 3,000 from 1890 to 1900. The town contained a branch of the Hancock Bank, a post office, a courthouse, a jail, a silent movie theater, and a high school.

Gainesville was an early trading center on the Pearl River which became the county seat from 1830 to 1857. Moreover, it was a logging community and a trapper's paradise. Bill Whitfield had a store in Gainesville where farmers could shop or trade and sell cash crops and livestock.

Leaky ponds: What can I do?

One of the most often asked questions in pond management: "What do I do with my pond? It is leaking." While this is a very common problem, it is important to remember that all ponds leak. There are literally tens of thousands of soil types and each one has different qualities. From coarse, rocky soils to sand to clay, they all interact with moisture in different ways. So, how do you avoid dealing with a pond that loses water almost as quickly as you can add to it?

That's the tricky part; because in order to avoid it, you should start at the beginning of pond construction for optimum results. When you build your pond, you should know the soils you are dealing with. More often than not, leaky ponds have soil issues. So, work with your engineer, contractor, or Natural Resources Conservation Service to determine the existing soil types. What you prefer is clay, which holds water.

Conservation Corner

by James L. Cummins

Wildlife Mississippi

So, the best-case scenario is you build the pond yourself and can take all the precautions. But, suppose you have inherited or purchased land with a pond on it and your pond of dreams has turned into a puddle of nightmares. What then?

Priority one is to quantify the leak. An important note to remember is that 1 acre, 1 inch deep, is 27,000 gallons of water.

Evaporation can account for as much as half an inch each day during dry, hot conditions. Therefore, expect some evaporation. Learn about evaporation rates for your area and compare those rates to your pond loss. If your pond level is dropping more than half an inch per day, then you should investigate.

In determining the cause of a leaky pond, due diligence is your best bet. Some things for consideration: your dam could be leaking; water can be escaping around an overflow or drain pipe; there are porous soils in the bottom of your pond; or your water's chemistry can be so acidic that it leaves holes in the pond's bottom.

If you are unable to find a construction problem (leaky dam or overflow pipe) then finding the problem becomes more tedious. The hard part is trying to figure out which soils, under water, are porous and precisely where the leak is.

There is no device or conventional method to find leaks. There are several products that purport to solve your problems, but if you don't know the exact location of the hole, then you can't effectively stop the leak. You may be able to for a short time, but not for long term.

You must figure out where the pond is leaking. The most logical process is to drain the pond. If you cannot determine an obvious leak, then you will need to coat the entire bottom of the pond with good clay or add bentonite (a light-colored clay that expands in water) as prescribed by a professional. There are several other products available to assist you, but it is most important that you adequately fix the leak.

The reality is that if you can find the leak, then you stand an excellent chance of fixing it. So, do the research, seek professional help, and be diligent in your work. That's the best chance you have for successfully fixing your leaky pond.

Challenges

that spot where nobody messes with them,” he said. “Camps start off with one or two people and end up with 20, 30, 40 and then you get that one in there that just causes a big ruckus and shuts it down for everybody.

“But the one in the Kiln and the one in Gulfport, those have been there for years. They’re such massive camps that, to be honest with you, if they rallied up all their law enforcement and they went in there together, I don’t think they have enough to get them out.”

Wimbish says the “camp” label doesn’t adequately describe the dynamics in the woods.

“An actual community, I call it,” he said. “Everybody gets to know everybody and a natural order follows, just like in the animal kingdom world. You’re going to have somebody who keeps peace; you’re going to have somebody who causes problems. And as long as somebody is there to remind everybody you don’t have to put hands on each other to settle disputes, it will actually function well.”

He was sharing the woods with the two men whose fight ended in murder. After that incident, Wimbish became more selective of who lived near him.

“After that I was regulating who was allowed to move into my woods because I didn’t want any problems. I had rules: You couldn’t panhandle the (Wal-Mart) parking lot, couldn’t harass customers, no fighting, no loud music or big fires. It was real simple – we just don’t want attention. And so that’s where the ‘Mayor of the Homeless’ comes from. It was because I was policing everybody in those woods and then others saw how good it was in my camp and they asked me if I would move to their camps.

“I didn’t agree to, but I told them I would help them bring peace to their spots. So, I went from camp to camp helping them to appoint who’s over what in each camp and showing them that even in homelessness you have to have a system set up.”

Kenney Washington, the director of client services at the Back Bay Mission in Biloxi, has seen how creative some homeless can be.

“One guy had plastic bins with all of his canned goods in, he had a metal rod that he had put between two trees, and he had all his clothes on hangers on that, had a mirror on the tree, had a tarp over his tent.”

He went on to describe the most elaborate shelter he’s seen.

“He is an army veteran who basically cleared a lot, found an opening between two trees, found some French doors, started building a little house out there around those doors, put pallets on the floor, carpet over that, some tarp siding, had a sofa, he had a love seat, a dresser and mirror in there and he had a deadbolt and chain lock on his door so when he left he was able to lock up.”

DANGERS OF THE WOODS

As nice as that shelter may be on the scale of homeless camps, hazards of living outdoors abound. Jack (not his real name) has lived in a tent for about a year and he describes the perils that have challenged him.

“You have to deal with animals and ants constantly trying to mess with your food supply or you. And nothing is totally waterproof. It’s so hard to get things to dry. I’ve had to throw away a lot of clothes that mold up because you don’t get it dry.”

And then there are the storms such as the one he recently endured.

“I’ve never seen lightning like that. I kissed my butt goodbye and put my head underneath my sleeping bag and hoped for the best and if I woke up in the morning, I woke up in the morning, but I was afraid of the trees falling on me, getting hit by lightning because it was just constantly light like it was daytime. It was bad.”

Cold weather can be more than scary. Wimbish described the danger of freezing weather to transients.

“Usually they wait until the very last frost because on the road that’s when it catches some people. They get caught in the middle of A and B without proper shelter and that’s how you find homeless people dead because while you’re sleeping you don’t realize how cold you’re getting and you just freeze in your sleep. So, we try not to get caught in a transition.”

Pastor Zach Cooper has opened the Old Spanish Trail Baptist Church as a cold weather shelter for four years. He says the number of people seeking shelter goes up as the temperature goes down.

“When it gets really cold that’s when we have a lot of people and that just makes sense because a lot of people can probably rough it for a little while but when it gets really cold it’s a choice of life or death. You don’t want to be out there sleeping in that type of weather because you’ll freeze to death.”

For those who won’t leave the woods in time of bad weather, Wimbish leads a small team who answer the call to care for their brethren.

“When the weather gets real bad we go out looking for them. We make sure they’re not out in it. If it’s too cold, too hot, too wet, there are a few of us that are actively out there in the woods, on the trails, and we are looking for them and if they don’t want to come back with us, well, we brought supplies with us. We definitely take care of as many people as we can.”

As if Mother Nature doesn’t throw enough challenges to the homeless, they also have to deal with human nature, as Waveland Police Officer John Nelson explained.

“Almost all of them carry weapons to protect themselves from other homeless trying to rob them. They definitely do set up different traps to try to protect their property. A lot of them leave their site during the day and then they’ll come back to find other people have raided their campsite.”

Jack was a victim of theft when he first became homeless.

“I’ve already had everything stolen from me twice. The first time was in town and my bag went missing while I was eating. I lost a lot of my sentimental stuff from when my daughter was born.

“And then the second time, someone found my campsite and rummaged through it and took what they wanted to take which was pretty much everything. So, it’s been rough. Once you’ve been around here for a little while though, people start to know you and then they get used to you and they don’t mess with you anymore. So, I guess that was a beginning thing.”

HYGIENE

A common complaint, and an issue that impacts the physical and mental health of homeless, is the lack of local public shower facilities.

As Jack explains, “They had the bathrooms over here at the park (soccer fields on Longfellow) but those aren’t public according to the county. They lock them and if they find you in there they’ll call the cops on you. There really is no place to go for anybody.”

In lieu of shower facilities, homeless people like Jack have to innovate.

“What I do is fill up empty water jugs and use those. It’s cold. You don’t feel like you’re getting the soap off of you and everything. You have to be worrying about disease and all that stuff too if you don’t shower correctly. The number one thing that would make life better is access to showers. It’s just basic hygiene that people take for granted. I’m lucky I got used to cold water.”

Dwayne (not his real name) is not so lucky. “The hardest thing is not having a hot shower. I’ve done went three, four weeks without a shower and when you haven’t had a hot shower in that long, you forget how good it feels.”

Hygiene is more than a physical feeling. Except for a few, most homeless are very aware of their appearance. They know when they look dirty and smell bad and their self-respect keeps them from interacting with the public.

Connie Lyons noticed when certain individuals were no longer coming to King’s Kitchen.

“I asked a couple of them, ‘Why won’t y’all come here?’ They said they didn’t feel good. They felt like they smelled and nobody wanted to be around them. So I talked to Pastor Mike and said, ‘Can we get some products together and give it to them so they can take care of themselves to the point they didn’t feel like they would be rejected because of their odor?’ ”

“We developed a program to where people started donating toothpaste, soap, washrags, so they can carry in their back packs, and we would try to make sure they have a back pack, to give them some dignity. And we’ll let them come to the clothesline (donated clothes). If they come in dirty and they want to change, they can throw those clothes away and get fresh clothes.”

For everyday hygiene health, Connie says the King’s Kitchen gives out bags with items such as wet wipes, soap, toothbrushes, and toothpaste.

“There’s a group out of Diamondhead that sends blue bags for the men and pink bags for the women. They had a member of the family that was homeless and they decided when this person died they would do a special thing in honor of this homeless person. Every month they bring us between 20 and 30 packages.”

WHEN ILLNESS SETS IN

Living alone in the woods without a phone carries many risks. One persistent danger is not being able to get medical help quickly. Lyons tells of helping to get a homeless man to the emergency room just in time.

“There was a gentleman who didn’t show up at the (King’s) Kitchen to eat for several days so Todd (Wimbish) started looking for him.”

Wimbish continued the story, “Somebody that I had asked said that he sent them a message they didn’t understand but in the message it said ‘heart attack.’ That’s when I went and got Momma (Lyons) and she brought me there.”

Lyons described the rescue. “It was about 2 a.m. and it was deep in the woods. I mean, I couldn’t even cross that ditch but Todd got him and we took him to the hospital. He was full of lesions and when I visited him in the hospital the doctor said he would have died if he had not gotten to the hospital when he did.”

The duo also rescued another person, this one living under tragic circumstances.

“There was a young girl, I think she was 16 years old,” Lyons said. “She met a young guy on a dating site who showed her pictures of a house he said was his but it wasn’t. She left her hometown and came here and they were living in the woods across the street from his mother’s house. She got raped and became pregnant.

“Somebody contacted Todd and he got her to come to the King’s Kitchen and I took her to Coastal Family Health. They said she had an infection so bad to where it was going into her blood system. She could have died in those woods because she didn’t know where to go, she wasn’t from here, and he just kind of left her when she got pregnant. She was a very nice young lady. I ended up contacting her parents and Back Bay Mission helped me get a ticket to get her home.”

Lyons emphasizes how important Coastal Family Health is to the homeless. “They wouldn’t have a place to get medical care if Coastal Family didn’t have a program for the homeless. That’s a big issue in the homeless community needing medical help. They can’t get the help because they don’t have money.”

INTERACTION WITH POLICE

Local arrests for vagrancy are now rare. Gary Ponthieux, the chief of police in Bay St. Louis, explains why they may stop and question a homeless person.

“Well, typically we only contact people who we deem suspicious. A lot of times people will call us in reference to a suspicious person in a neighborhood that they haven’t seen before and our job is to investigate that. Once we get out and start talking to somebody, it’s pretty quick and the officer can determine, ‘Hey, is this person local? Is this person up to a criminal activity or is this person just homeless passing through?’

I mean, just with a little bit of conversation and investigation we can make that determination pretty quickly.”

The Waveland and Bay St. Louis Police Departments are active supporters of King’s Kitchen, giving rides to there and volunteering to feed the homeless on their off days. Pastor Mike Ramsey is appreciative of what law enforcement does for people on our streets.

“Our police departments have been really good at supporting us about bringing folks here to eat. The Hancock County Sheriff Department has done an extremely good job about finding single mothers walking down the road, others have been homeless and just bringing them here to see what we could do to help them.”

MENTAL HEALTH

A description of the homeless life would fall short if it didn’t include consideration of a condition that can significantly impact our successes and failures in daily life. Numerous studies have shown that our self-confidence and self-esteem determines how we deal with challenges.

Of the daily struggle to stay confident, Jack says, “We’re people just like them. Made the wrong choices or were pushed into our situations that were out of our hands but we are people and we bleed just like them. We cry just like them. They shouldn’t look down upon us just because we’re in this position. You don’t know why we’re in this position. Stop and ask. You may learn something.

“Some of the best people I know have gone through hardships and they understand and they know. Definitely. Some of the sweetest, nicest people you’ll ever meet are homeless people willing to give you the shirt off their back. A lot of people hide that they’re homeless. You don’t know who’s homeless and who’s not – because it is embarrassing. You don’t want anybody to know that.”

Washington, of Back Bay Mission, stresses the importance of treating the homeless with respect.

“A lot of people see homelessness, they see what I call ‘The Faceless.’ You see them but you don’t. And that’s the sad thing about it.”

“These are human beings so we don’t call them clients. We call them guests like they’re guests in our house. We treat them as human beings because a lot of people look at them like they’re aliens. A lot of people look at the homeless population as if they’re not human beings. It’s up to people like myself to humanize the homeless population and say that these are human beings, all these people were productive members of society at one time, and a lot of these people don’t want to be in the situation they’re in.”

“How can we as a civilized society turn our backs on needy people? Every time there’s a disaster everybody comes together but they don’t see the disaster that’s been going on for so long before their eyes every day.”

Readers are encouraged to e-mail comments and suggestions to help the homeless to Publisher Rob Langrell at rlangrell@sea-coastecho.com. A compilation of e-mails may be published after the series to share the community’s ideas.

Merchants

Whitfield would carry a farmer's charge account like a bank and give them ample time to pay for their supplies when the crops were harvested. Merchants at that time would accept cattle or crops such as sweet potatoes to trade or pay for items of sale.

In 1857 Bay St. Louis became the county seat of Hancock County. Until 1908 the border between Hancock County and the newly formed Pearl River County had not been adjusted by the Mississippi Legislature.

Those farmers living south of Carriere had to go to the Bay to pay taxes, get marriage licenses, attend court, or take care of official business.

Over the 19th century the commercial epicenter of Hancock County shifted from the Pearl River communities of Pearlington, Logtown, and Gainesville to Bay St. Louis.

J.B. Ulman owned a successful general merchandise store in Waveland. It was next to the railroad crossing on Nicholson Ave., opposite the Ulman Woolen Mill. Ulman was highly regarded in Waveland and Bay St. Louis and was treasurer of the town of Waveland.

Traveling salesmen, called drummers, who worked for distributors in New Orleans, took the train on Monday northward to Nicholson to begin their weeks work in Hancock County. Here the salesman could hire a horse and buggy with driver to go southwest to Gainesville, Napoleon, Logtown, Pearlinton, and Kiln replenishing stores along the way. In addition he sold his wares to farm families along the way ending his workweek Friday in Bay St. Louis.

Here he paid his driver who returned the horse and buggy to Nicholson and returned to New Orleans aboard the L&N train in Bay St. Louis.

Spare Time

Fishing has been really good lately. We have had a good of push of salt water, and the action has been very steady. We are seeing trout, reds, flounder, triple tails, and sharks daily. The east side of the Biloxi Marsh has turned on big time!!!

I can't stress enough to leave yourself a little "free time" before your fishing trip. Last week, we had a late departure for a half day trip to Cat Island. I was an hour and a half ahead of schedule. I was planning on organizing my tackle trays, with my "free time".

SHORE THING

FISHING REPORT

by Capt. Sonny Schindler

I didn't realize it until I was at my ice stop, that one of my trailer tires was almost flat. I limped to the gas station, and filled it with enough air to get me to the boat launch. With the boat off of the trailer, changing the tire only takes a few minutes. Luckily I had a spare, so I wouldn't have to be chasing down a tire that afternoon.

When I looked at my flat tire, I noticed THREE small nails in it. I haven't found any more in the other tires, but wouldn't be surprised if any more appear.

The next day, I ran down to SPORT TRAIL TRAILERS, on HWY 90, in Waveland. I left with not one, but two spare tires.

FYI SPORT TRAIL has a parts department for everything on a boat trailer.

Trailer tires, fishing reels, popping corks, bait nets, etc are all the same. If you have something in your arsenal that can make or break your fishing trip, get a couple extra.

Stuff is always gonna break, fall overboard, or walk off. It's amazing how something as simple as a 1 cent nail can literally ruin a fishing trip. A little spare time, and a couple extra "spares" can save the day.

As always, have fun and be safe.

Commercially caught wild american shrimp from Gulf of Mexico remain safe to eat

SEA COAST ECHO

BILOXI — For the commercial wild-caught shrimp industry in the Gulf of Mexico, it's business as usual.

In spite of reports coming out of the Gulf of Mexico about a freshwater influx due to flooding in the Midwest, along with some resulting, close-to-shore algae blooms, commercial shrimp processors are reporting that this year, though volumes are lower, shrimp quality and size are good as ever.

"The Mississippi Department of Marine Resources (MDMR) is continuing to test water and fish samples to ensure seafood safety in Mississippi waters," said MDMR Executive Director Joe Spraggins. "MDMR is advising fishermen to avoid catching seafood in waters where algae is present. Thus far, the water samples tested by MDMR and the National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration have not shown toxin levels high enough to warrant concern for consumption of local seafood. Recreational and commercial fishing off-shore in Mississippi waters remains unaffected by the algal bloom and is safe for consumption. The MDMR is committed to frequent sampling to ensure the safety for fresh locally-caught seafood."

Spraggins echoed these sentiments in the New York Post, saying, "The water quality doesn't reach anywhere to the point that would cause us to be alarmed about seafood." The state had sent seafood samples to the National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration for tests and nothing wrong or harmful about the food was found.

"Brown shrimp, the kind of shrimp harvested in the spring and early summer months in near-shore waters in the upper Gulf prefer a higher salinity environment," said Dr. David Veal, Executive Director of the American Shrimp Processors Association. "Shrimp are more than capable of moving between areas in search of pristine environmental conditions optimum for their growth."

Restaurants and grocery chains around the country purchase the vast majority of their U.S. wild-caught shrimp from shrimp processors or their distributors. Mississippi processors are a value-added industry for the state of Mississippi. While Mississippi waters only produce about 6 million pounds annually, these processors produce about 25-30 million pounds of shrimp. That 19- to 24-million pound difference comes from other states.

"We are very proud of the fact that Mississippi has become a value-added state when it comes to shrimp processing," said Dr. Veal. "But that also means that while shrimp in Mississippi waters are not commercially-caught inside the algae bloom, there's a good chance that shrimp labeled as processed in Mississippi weren't even caught there."

More information on the efforts of ASPA and its members can be accessed via www.american-shrimp.com.

About the American Shrimp Processors Association (ASPA), based in Biloxi, Mississippi, was formed in 1964 to represent and promote the interests of the domestic, U.S. wild-caught, warm water shrimp processing industry along the Gulf and South Atlantic with members from Texas to North Carolina.

We are the collective voice of the industry, and our focus is to promote the interests of shrimp processors, other segments of the U.S. domestic wild-caught warm water shrimp industry and the general public.

I also recall having a stand down with a ram at a farm we had walked past (he was this close to charg-

Heat-loving Rudbeckia offer big summer blooms

MSU EXTENSION SERVICE

Summer has hit us with a vengeance this year.

At my home landscape in Ocean Springs, we've experienced some of the highest temperatures in several years. This weekend, we had a heat index above 115, which drove me indoors by about 11 in the morning.

You may be like me and find that some of the needed landscape chores are simply not getting done in this heat.

But there are some plants that actually shine in this heat. One such group that refuses to wilt with the rest is the Rudbeckia.

Rudbeckias are among my summer favorites with their bright and sunny-colored flowers. It's no wonder that Rudbeckias have been selected as a Mississippi Medallion and All-America Selections winner.

Rudbeckias have received recognition in Mississippi for their landscape and garden performance. In 1999, the Rudbeckia Indian Summer was selected as a Mississippi Medallion winner. This same variety previously was an All-America Selection in 1995.

It's no wonder the plant received these honors. Indian Summer has been a reliable performer in our landscape at the Mississippi State University Coastal Research and Extension Center in Biloxi since at least 2008. It really is a showstopper every year.

The upright stems are sturdy enough to display huge flowers that can reach a whopping 9 inches across. The petal colors are bright and cheery, ranging from sunshine yellow to warm oranges at the petal bases. Each flower has a delicious-looking, rich chocolate-brown center cone.

Cherokee Sunset, an All-America Selection in 2002, is a fantastic choice consisting of a blend of warm autumnal colors in yellow, orange and mahogany bronze. The flowers are big -- 3 to 4 inches in diameter -- and they are a mix of singles and doubles, especially when grown in full sun.

Cherokee Sunset reaches about 24 inches tall, and its sturdy stems hold the large flowers without staking. These plants are a good choice for cutting and using in fall indoor arrangements.

Rudbeckia Prairie Sun is a robust selection with very distinctive blooms. It was selected as an All-America Selection in 2003.

The bicolor flowers have orange petals tipped in bright, primrose yellow with light-green centers. The size of these 5-inch flowers makes it hard not to notice them wherever they are grown, whether in your landscape or in a large container on the patio. As with the other Rudbeckia varieties, these plants make a fantastic cut flower.

Plant all Rudbeckias in full sun for best flowering and color. These plants grow best in compost-amended and well-drained soils, but they tolerate poor, clay soils.

While they are known and grown for their tolerance of droughty conditions, lack of water can limit flowering. For best landscape performance, you must keep consistent soil moisture. If you can water during these times, you will be rewarded with continued flowering.

Rudbeckias are all considered lower maintenance plants, but they need deadheading, which is the removal of the fading flowers to keep the plants blooming all summer long.

If you are a home gardener growing these beauties, take advantage of their summer-long blooming by bringing the landscape inside with gorgeous cut Rudbeckia stems. These plants are easy to start from seed, so start planning your 2020 landscape right now.

Farmer Is Fed Up With Abandoned Pets

DEAR PAW'S CORNER: I'm hoping you'll publish this letter and make people aware that farms are not dumping grounds for unwanted pets. This year alone, I've found a litter of kittens (no mama) outside my front gate, two dogs tied up to my cattle gate, and a dead hamster in a cage next to my trash cans.

When an animal is abandoned near our farm, we take it to the local shelter. Most likely that dog or cat is put down after a few days. Dogs that I can't catch, that begin to threaten our livestock, we have to hunt down and kill.

A farm is not the place to leave your pet. We do not have a room in the house staked out for hamster cages. We did not prepare a sunny corner of the barn for your kittens to live in (we have our own barn cats, thank you). Our dog is a highly trained working dog who helps us tend livestock; we do not have time to heal your dog of the trauma you caused by abandoning it, much less teach it how to be a farm dog.

Please don't publish my location, as it might just encourage more idiots to dump their pets at my front gate. — Frustrated and Sad Farmer

DEAR FRUSTRATED: I hear you, and I'm sorry it's happening to you. Folks, dumping your pet is cruel, and in some states, it's a crime. Most abandoned pets suffer and die. If you cannot take care of a pet, contact the local shelter for help. Your pet is your responsibility.

Meet sweet, mellow Tipsey. Unfortunately, this 8 to 10 year old frosted faced beauty finds herself in an animal shelter, rather than enjoying her golden years with her family. It is suspected that Tipsey's owners moved and left her behind to fend for herself. Sadly, Tipsey's guardian angel, who was fostering her, is in declining health and could no longer care for her. Tipsey is likely a Labrador Retriever/Golden Retriever mix, and she is wonderful with all of our staff and volunteers. She is friendly with the doggies in her living area, but her playing days are over; she is arthritic and has several "fat lumps." (Who doesn't, right?) Instead, she looks forward to gentle, short walks, tummy rubs, and lots of love and cuddles. Tipsey has lots of love and companionship to give her forever family. Please help us find her the loving home that she deserves. We do not want her to spend a moment longer in a shelter environment. Please drop by the shelter at 7175 Texas Flat Rd, Kiln, Mon-Fri, 10-4, to meet Tipsey. She will win you over with her calm, loving nature and sweet personality. For more information, call 228 466 4516. Also visit our Facebook page, Hancock County Animal Shelter, MS, to see more pictures of Tipsey and of the many other wonderful, adoptable animals looking for their forever homes.

IS YOUR RELIGION LIKE WAITING IN A FAST FOOD LINE?

On occasions when I am waiting in line at a fast food restaurant I sometimes wonder if people treat their religion like they do their food. Our world has become a hurry up society and we want everything at our finger tips at our time of need.

Most of you will agree that by the time you receive your food from many of the fast food chains you are going to get food that has been prepared earlier and sat under warming lamps until sold. This sometimes causes the food to taste old or become hard from sitting under the light too long. Don't get me wrong; I don't believe any of these food establishments want any of their food to go out the window that is not hot or fresh, however on many occasions people are in such a hurry for their food they accept what you have instead of waiting for the fresher prepared food. When we receive cold food, stale food, or food that is not up to par we, as consumers, become agitated and take our frustrations out on the waiters or waitresses and it is not entirely their fault.

Is our religion like this? Do we expect to go to the altar and want God to handle our problems at that moment instead of giving him time to really solve the problem? When we talk with our ministers, pastors, elders, deacons, and even our friends, do we expect them to handle our problems or guide us with the answers in a manner of minutes? Have we become so self-consumed in ourselves that we expect all answers to be right in front of us?

Many of us treat our salvation like that. We have accepted that Jesus is the one and only triune God however, we expect Him to be at our beck and call at any time. It is true that He will talk to us and listen to us anytime we call on Him. It is true that we can expect Him to answer our prayers and guide us in the right direction; however we need to realize that He is not like a fast-food serving line. He will answer every prayer but it will be in His time and not ours and all of His answers will be fresh for us to understand.

He will never leave us wondering if or what we need to know is correct or not.

In John 14:6 Jesus tells us, "I am the way, the truth, and the life..." He will never treat us like some fast food restaurants and give us warmed over food for thought. He will always address our needs and guide us if we will trust Him and allow Him to be our guide. Remember what the psalmist says in Psalm 25:21, "Let integrity and uprightness preserve me, for I wait on you."

Prayer: Father God thank you for being my rock and salvation. I pray that I will never question your guidance and leadership. Amen.

SEA COAST ECHO

Our Lady Academy (OLA) students, Claire Escher, Emily Gabbett, Emily Green and Hayden Henry were selected to participate in Apex Leadership Summit at The University of Mississippi this summer. The Apex Leadership Summit is a leadership training program packed with leadership development and sessions covering ethics and social responsibility, problem-solving and community outreach. The summit rallies high school senior leaders from across Mississippi. Selection to the program is very competitive, with more than 350 applicants for the 160 invitations to participate. During the Apex program, students attend leadership seminars and team-building exercises and perform community service projects. Emily Gabbett commented on her experience, “I learned how to improve my leadership skills and stepped out of my comfort zone.” Hayden Henry described the program, “Apex was truly a fun and rewarding experience, one that I will never forget. The program directors were so engaging and really helped sharpen our leadership skills and fostered team building. I made many new friends from people across the State of Mississippi.” Claire Escher added, “Apex was truly a memorable experience. I will never forget all the new friends and memories I made. My favorite part about Apex was learning how to work with unique and diverse personalities.” Emily Green summed it up, “This leadership program was an exceptional workshop to improve my leadership skills and to work with others while having fun.”

Local Residents Earn Degree from WGU

SEA COAST ECHO

SALT LAKE CITY - The following local residents have earned a degree from Western Governors University (WGU). The online, nonprofit university held its 70th (Orlando, Florida); 71st (Cincinnati, Ohio); and 72nd (Anaheim, California) commencement ceremonies this year to celebrate the graduation of more than 22,000 students from across the country.

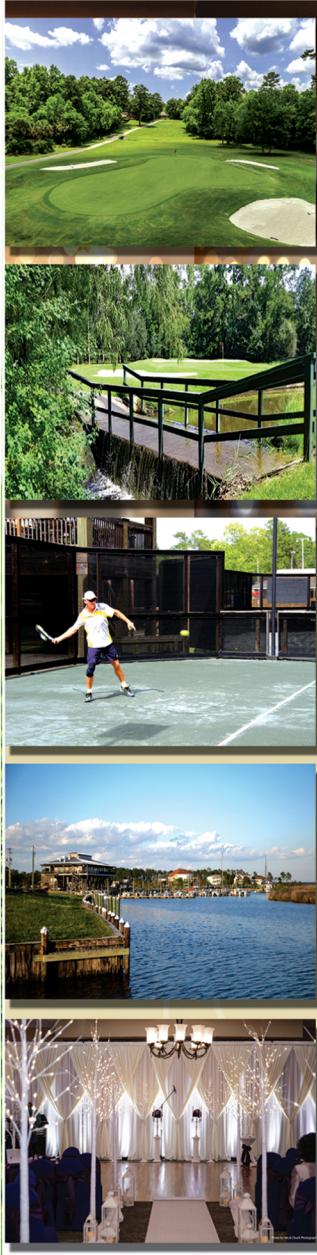

- * Renee Leporowski of Bay Saint Louis (39520) has earned her Bachelor of Science, Business Management
- * Whitney Price of Diamondhead (39525) has earned her MBA, IT Management
- * Rachelle Dix of Pass Christian (39571) has earned her Master of Science, Nursing - Education (BSN to MSN)
- * Staci Shaw of Waveland (39576) has earned her Bachelor of Arts, Special Education
- * Chad Whitney of Waveland (39576) has earned his Bachelor of Science, Computer Science

WGU has recognized 13,244 undergraduate and 8,930 graduate degree recipients, who have completed their degrees in the last six months. Their areas of study include business, K-12 education, information technology, and health professions, including nursing. The average time to graduation for those earning a bachelor's degree was 2 years, 4 months, while the average time to degree for graduate programs was 1 year, 7 months.

WGU pioneered competency-based education, which measures learning rather than time spent in class. Designed to meet the needs of working adults, students study and learn on their own schedules with individualized, one-to-one faculty support. They complete courses as soon as they demonstrate that they have mastered the subject matter; allowing them to move quickly through material they already know so they can allocate time for what they still need to learn. As a result, many WGU students are able to accelerate their studies, saving both time and money.

About WGU

Established in 1997 by 19 U.S. governors with a mission to expand access to high-quality, affordable higher education, online, nonprofit WGU now serves more than 115,000 students nationwide and has more than 147,000 graduates in all 50 states. Driving innovation as the nation's leading competency-based university, WGU has been recognized by the White House, state leaders, employers, and students as a model that works in postsecondary education. In just 22 years, the university has become a leading influence in changing the lives of individuals and families, and preparing the workforce needed in today's rapidly evolving economy. WGU is accredited by the Northwest Commission on Colleges and Universities, has been named one of Fast Company's Most Innovative Companies, and was featured on NPR, NBC Nightly News, CNN, and in The New York Times.
